

PRIVACY POLICY

The website of Law et Justicia contains all the policies pertaining to the collection, use, and disclosure of information of the author(s). All the author(s) who chose to publish their work through us are bound by our Privacy Policy. The personal information shared shall not be shared with anyone except those mentioned in the policy itself.

COLLECTION & USE OF INFORMATION

While rendering our services, we may require the author(s) to furnish their personally identifiable information, which will be inclusive of your name, contact information, and address among other things. The information so collected will be used for contacting you and no personal information besides the name of the author(s) would be published on the public forum.

SECURITY

We greatly value your privacy and the trust that the author(s) have vested in us by rendering to us their personal information. We would to the best of our abilities will try to keep your information restricted to us. However, in contemporary times, no mode of transmission over the internet can be deemed to be 100% secure.